

I have recently heard that Low Power FM is being introduced as a new broadcast service. I believe that this may effect a radio station that is extremely important to me and my family KLove (national Christian Radio). Recently, another CHristian radio stations (106.7 Then Fish) was replaced by a talk radio station. KLove, is a postive and encouraging radio station (just like it's advertisments say). This important to not only me, but everyone in this busy technological era. When I am driving home after a stressful day, listening to KLove encourages me to keep going and also lifts up my spirits. KLove is also important to any one who has those big moral and "religious" questions. KLove offers an answer to some of life's most difficult quesions. If it were to be replaced by a LPFM broadcaster providing other programming I think that there wouldn't be any alternative to the radio stations that only offer music with inappropriate language and material in the songs they play. If the FCC is allowing the right for people to have any type of music heard, KLove (Christian) radio needs to also be included.

Thank you for you consideration on this matter and please keep KLove on the air!
